Lisa Montgomery began her career at MUSC as director of patient financial services. After receiving a Masters in Health Administration from MUSC's College of Health Professions, she quickly moved up at MUSC – to controller, then to chief financial officer of the hospital. Ms. Montgomery currently serves as Executive Vice President for Finance and Operations. In this role, her responsibilities include oversight of the operations for four main university entities: Finance, Operations, Diversity and Inclusion, and Engineering and Facilities.

While Lisa's career trajectory has been steadfast, she'll be quick to tell you how she got there. And it wasn't alone. When asked about her recent gift to MUSC's College of Health Professions, she replied, "I've had a very rewarding career and a lot of great mentors along the way, and I wanted to give back."

As a high school student, Montgomery assisted her father chairside, where he worked as Berkeley County's first full-time dentist. She reflects back on her time in his office, handing him instruments as he worked with patients. She also helped her mother, who managed the office, with billing and paperwork.

"My parents built the business from the ground up, and they set a great example of what it means to dedicate yourself to what matters—to family, service and a good work ethic," Montgomery said.

Those experiences at the family practice not only instilled in her a connection to health care, but they also served as the foundation for why health care is important—service. Not only providing care, but showing people that you care.

As a 1993 MHA graduate of the College of Health Professions, Montgomery sought to further her connection to health care. "I decided an MHA was the best of everything. I could do it while I worked, and while I continued to advance in my career and contribute to MUSC's missions," she said. Montgomery's gift, which also will incorporate funding from her mother's estate, will help to provide scholarships or leadership training to women in the College of Health Professions. She discussed the gift with her mother, now 90, and they made the decision together. "My mother was an extraordinary role model growing up," said Montgomery. "It meant a lot to have her input and contributions incorporated into this gift."

MUSC Provost Lisa Saladin, former dean of the College of Health Professions, called the funding "a generous and really important gift."

"We both recognize there's a unique need in leadership development for women," Saladin said. "It's so important to lift up other women."

Montgomery sees her gift as an opportunity to continue to make the university's future accomplishments a part of her own legacy by helping to change what's possible for the College of Health Professions, with a specific focus on leadership development for women.

Over her more than 25 years on MUSC's campus, Montgomery has watched the organization transform into a world-class research institution. Montgomery can look just outside her own window to see firsthand some of the positive, physical changes around her that have taken place. Although she played a critical role in many of the large infrastructure projects of the past several decades, she takes special pride in the development of MUSC's campus into a place where patients, families and employees can seek healing and comfort.

"Philanthropic support helps ensure MUSC will be able to provide services that support its missions of research, patient care and education," she said. "I'm passionate about MUSC's commitment to serve others, and as a leader, I want to be a part of that and pay it forward."

What exactly is a Legacy Gift?
As an alumnus, we all recognize the value of the education that we have received. A legacy gift is a way to ensure that future generations will have the same opportunity provided to us. A Legacy Gift is simply a gift that someone plans on making at a future date. Examples would be including MUSC in your will or trust, naming the College as a beneficiary of a life insurance policy or retirement account, or making a gift that generates annual income to you. At MUSC, we recognize all gifts the same, whether a current gift or a gift that you intend to make in the future.

How can I make sure that my heirs are taken care of as well as the College?
The wonderful thing about a planned gift is that helps you create your legacy now without impacting any current demands, such as retirement, taking care of family, or health care. An example of a gift that lessens the burden on family is a gift from your retirement account. Since our heirs will incur income taxes if they inherit an IRA, naming the College as a beneficiary of a retirement account is one example of a gift that will save taxes to your heirs.

Since many people leave a gift through a bequest, is this a difficult thing to do?
It is not difficult but it does involve updating your will or trust to include the College of Health Professions. We are happy to provide specific language to honor your specific intent.

What is the easiest way to make a Legacy Gift?
Most legacy gifts are made by including MUSC in your will or trust by leaving either a percentage or a fixed dollar amount. However, the easiest way to make such a gift is by naming MUSC as a beneficiary of a retirement plan or life insurance policy. All that is required is to obtain a beneficiary form and to include MUSC as a beneficiary.

If I have already left a gift in my estate plans for MUSC, why would the College want to know?
If you have already made a provision in your estate for MUSC, we would love to have the opportunity to thank you and recognize you for a gift you are making in the future. Even if you don’t want the recognition, it allows the College of Health Professions to ensure that we have the details to honor your specific intent.

We would love to hear from you! Please contact William Stalvey at stalveyw@musc.edu or 843-792-1143.

Pardon Our Mistake…
CVP Achieves National Distinction
The American Board of Cardiovascular Perfusion approved the MUSC Cardiovascular Perfusion Simulation Center to administer High Fidelity Perfusion Simulation for case credits to a Certified Clinical Perfusionist. Our center is 1 of 5 ABCP-recognized simulation centers in the nation. Congratulations to Dr. Sistino and Mr. Fitzgerald on this outstanding accomplishment!

Golden Graduates Luncheon
The College welcomed back our Golden Graduates for a lunch with Interim Dean Zoller. While on campus, they enjoyed a tour of the Cardiovascular Perfusion Simulation Lab by Dr. Joe Sistino, Mr. David Fitzgerald, and CVP students.
DEAN’S CORNER

Because of you, the College continues to reach new heights! And we are so pleased to announce the appointment of Dr. Zoher Kapasi, as the new Dean of the College of Health Professions. It is my pleasure to share the letter from our former Dean and the current MUSC Provost, Dr. Lisa Saladin. Thank you for your continued friendship and loyal support. Best wishes for a wonderful summer and please let us hear from you.

James S Zoller, PhD, MHA
Professor and Interim Dean
zollerjs@musc.edu | 843-792-3328

Dear MUSC Family,

It is my pleasure to announce the appointment of Zoher F. Kapasi, PT, Ph.D., MBA, as the new dean of the College of Health Professions, effective May 1, 2018. Dr. Kapasi was selected after an extensive national search and we look forward to welcoming him to this pivotal leadership role.

Dr. Kapasi has 24 years of experience as an academic faculty member and 7 years of experience as an academic leader as Emory University School of Medicine’s director of the Division of Physical Therapy, and vice chairman of education and chief of outpatient development in the Department of Rehabilitation Medicine. Dr. Kapasi’s administrative skills include academic program development, accreditation and fiscal management, fundraising and alumni engagement, and faculty mentoring, assessment and development. Some of his many administrative accomplishments include the successful initiation of two dual degree programs that combine a clinical degree with either an MBA or a Master’s degree of Public Health, the successful development of two residency programs, increasing direct research grant revenues by more than 200% over a 5-year period, establishing a collaborative relationship with the Georgia Institute of Technology to broaden research opportunities, and increasing clinical revenues in the faculty practice. In summary, his leadership experience encompasses all areas of our tripartite mission of education, research and service.

Despite his significant administrative roles, Dr. Kapasi currently still teaches human anatomy, advanced human anatomy and business management for the physical therapists in Emory’s physical therapy program and is dedicated to educational excellence. Throughout his academic career, Dr. Kapasi has earned several teaching awards. In 2014, Emory University School of Medicine conferred upon him the Dean’s Teaching Award and in 2017, Emory University presented him with the Emory Williams Distinguished Teaching Award.

Dr. Kapasi has been associated with Emory University since 1994, joining the faculty as an assistant professor in the Division of Physical Therapy. He received his bachelor’s and master’s degrees in physical therapy from Seth G.S. Medical College, University of Bombay in India. He went on to pursue his Ph.D. in anatomy-immunology from the Medical College of Virginia at Virginia Commonwealth University and later earned an MBA from Goizueta Business School at Emory University. Dr. Kapasi did post-doctoral work in immunology at Basel Institute for Immunology, Switzerland and the Medical College of Virginia. After graduation, his research focused on age-related changes in immune function and the effects of exercise and nutrition on the immune system.

Finally, Dr. Kapasi is a strong advocate for faculty and student engagement in their respective professional associations. He personally is an active member of the American Physical Therapy Association (APTA) and is currently secretary and a Board member of the American Council of Academic Physical Therapy and most recently he served on the Excellence in Physical Therapy Education Task Force and he chaired the Education Committee of the Private Practice Section of the APTA.

In closing, I want to express my gratitude to the search committee and especially to its chair, Dr. Mark Sothmann, for the time, effort and due diligence performed to identify the best candidate for this position. I would also like to extend my appreciation to Dr. Jim Zoller for his service and excellence as Interim Dean of the College of Health Professions since July 1, 2016.

Yours in service,
Lisa Saladin, PT, PhD, FAPTA
Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost

I am very excited about what is happening in the College of Health Professions. As the newly elected President of the Alumni Board, it is my intention to keep the board visible in the lives of current and future Alumni. In order to be successful, the board needs feedback from you. I have included my e-mail address below to encourage you to reach out and provide ideas and suggestions on how the Alumni Board can best achieve this goal. One of my favorite quotes is from the late JFK, and I will leave you with it: “Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country.” In that same spirit, I will always find a way to volunteer my help and support for our college and I hope many of you will join me.
