

Mass Shooting

Violence in America: How Safe Are You?

Dean G. Kilpatrick, Ph.D.,

MUSC Distinguished
University Professor

Director, National Crime
Victims Research &
Treatment Center

College of Medicine

With the number of mass violence events on the rise, Dr. Dean Kilpatrick explores what impact that has on the public and what can be done for the victims affected by these tragedies. He also will highlight what the center is doing with an $18 million federal grant it received to establish a National Mass Violence and Victimization Resource Center. Kilpatrick is director of MUSC's National Crime Victims Research & Treatment Center, which celebrated its 40th anniversary in 2017.

Science for the rest of us
