

#10-002 Abstract

The South Carolina Spinal Cord Injury Association is planning to hold a single day educational event for the spinal cord injury population of South Carolina. The event is scheduled for Saturday, October 15, 2011 at Saluda Shoals Park in Columbia, SC and has been named WIND, an acronym which stands for Wheeling in New Directions.

Goal 1: To reach out to individuals with SCI, their families, professionals and organizations working with SCI by hosting a single-day educational event that will provide opportunities for networking and fellowship.

Goal 2: To complement educational offerings with hands-on activities and exposure to recreational resources that will also encourage younger individuals with SCI to attend the event.