

The South Carolina Spinal Cord Injury Association will hold a single-day educational event for the spinal cord injury population of South Carolina and surrounding areas. This consumer conference will be held in 2014 and will have a varied line-up of topics to enhance the quality of life for people with spinal cord injuries, including a session on SCIRF-funded research. Other sessions will include adapted recreational activities, secondary conditions and chronic pain, adapted yoga, and relationships. Conference vendors will highlight related products and services, providing a wealth of resources in one place. The event will also give attendees an invaluable opportunity to network and learn from each other.
