

Addie Middleton, DPT is currently a PhD student at the University of South Carolina in Columbia, SC. She works in the University's Rehab Lab Complex under Dr. Stacy Fritz, PhD, PT. Addie graduated from USC's DPT program in 2007 and worked clinically as a physical therapist for the next five years in a variety of settings, from acute care to home health, and with a variety of populations, from pediatric to geriatric. In May of 2012, Addie returned to USC to pursue a PhD in Exercise Science with a rehabilitation focus. Addie's research interests are in improving assessment tools and intervention strategies to address gait and mobility restrictions in individuals with neurologic conditions.
